PROGRAM CONCEPT AND OBJECTIVES:

The Indian insurance industry has been implementing different Insurance schemes for cattle, livestock, poultry, fishes, honeybee etc. for a long period. Rural insurance involves multiple stakeholders, including State Governments, insurance companies, financial institutions, farmers and others.

Risk coverages and Underwriting considerations: Cattle and livestock assets may be financed from financial institutions while insurance schemes are promoted and subsidised by the Central and State Governments. Such insurances typically cover death and disablement due to diseases and accidents. Specific underwriting guidelines are framed depending upon the type of animals covered.

There can be various challenges in underwriting Rural insurance for example if insurance is done on market value basis, the fair assessment and settlement of claims can be a challenge. Various technologies are being used for easy implementation of cattle and other rural insurances in India and abroad.

Poultry, duck, fish-in-pond, horse, camel, elephant, honeybee brackish water fish, hydroponics, mari-culture, apiculture and sericulture are other forms of Rural Insurance, which can increase premium volume of the rural portfolio.
