

Classroom Training Session on Energy Insurance - Underwriting & Claims (CT) 24th - 25th June, 2025

Program Concept and Objectives:

Energy Insurance is a technology intensive area of Insurance. Though the total business in this area is not high in terms of number of policies and premium, the insurance industry needs high levels of expertise in dealing with these topics.

Insurers in the Energy line of business need to know the Property Damages that can emanate from upstream operations involving the exploration, extraction, and production of oil and natural gas; Midstream operations related to transportation, pipelines, terminals, including storage. Downstream operations for refining crude, purifying raw natural gas, and distributing final petroleum products to businesses using petroleum products, retail distributors, and other consumers.

In order to understand, assess and underwrite the risks, insurers involved in Energy Insurance would need a good amount of technical knowledge. Also, they have to appreciate the perspectives of various parties such as the principal, the contractor, the sub-contractor, the pipeline operators, among others.

College of Insurance has designed this programme on Energy Insurance to provide specialized knowledge and skill sets required to understand the interests of insurers and their customers in this highly technical area of insurance.
