Relevance of the Program:-

The age old proverb 'Prevention is better than cure', remains relevant today, especially in Healthcare. After the Covid-19 pandemic, the cost of Health Insurance has become a matter of greater concern for the common man. Insurers are facing challenges in managing and controlling insurance costs due to high claim ratios. Longer life span, backdrop of aging population, poor health habits, underuse of preventive services, overuse of care, etc. are some of the driving factors for increasing costs. An effective way to manage costs is to promote regular health checkups, screening, vaccination, early detecting of health issues, use of digital health tools, all of which are important in managing the health and wellbeing of people. Saving a life, averting a sickness and rendering a medical condition less complicated are factors that make Health Insurance business more viable for Insurers and also improve the health of the society.
